

Lublin, 13.08.2021

During the internship, the student should become familiar with:

1. the health and safety regulations of the Host Institution,
2. rules of organization of work in the laboratories of the Host Institution, including the rules of collection, preparation and storage of material for testing, disposal of biological material and the method of recording and archiving the results of research,
3. the scope of research, diagnostic and control activities conducted in the laboratories of the Host Institution,
4. analytical methods used in the laboratories of the Host Institution in the field of general analytics, microbiology, molecular biology or related sciences,
5. instrumental techniques and types of analyzers used in the laboratories of the Host Institution, taking into account the principles of their work.

dr hab. Anna Sierosławska

(the Internship Supervisor)